Wednesday, May 16th, lunch: Tiffany Fitzhenry

Hollywood & the Pentagon: A Relationship of Mutual Exploitation

The American movie community can be one of the most influential mechanisms for propaganda. War propaganda in movies is not new, it began almost a century ago. These days, the Department of Defense not only gives funding towards movie creation, but demands a certain level of control over script writing, narrative, and imaging. Join us to hear about what has occurred over the last 100 years, how that has changed in recent years, and what we can do in the future to remove the military industrial complex from our entertainment.

Wednesday, May 30th, lunch: Ari Wilkenfeld

Ending Sexual Harassment in the Workplace

Harassment, both overt and due to the status quo, is but one tool that the prevailing workplace uses to keep woman from advancing at the same pace as men. To dismantle sexual harassment, we need to recognize who it benefits (even if they don't realize it) and work together to create change and transform the prevailing workplace into a tension-free environment where all people can work productively and without fear or shame.

Wednesday, June 6th, lunch: Daryl Davis

Race Relations and Constructive Dialogue with the Ku Klux Klan

In the current political climate, strangers on opposite sides of issues rarely speak civilly to each other and families have been torn apart depending upon for whom they voted. The art of conversation and civil discourse appears to have vanished. Race relations expert Daryl Davis will discuss the need to restore constructive dialogue with those with whom we may disagree. He will demonstrate his methods by using the extreme example of a Black man coming to the table with a Ku Klux Klan leader.

Wednesday, June 13th, lunch: Annette Lantz-Simmons

CJP Peacebuilder of the Year

Creating a thriving conflict transformation and restorative justice organization

Annette will talk about the personal and professional path that helped her to create the Center for Conflict Resolution in Kansas, City, Missouri. This growing and thriving organization is seen in the Western Missouri region as the place to go for conflict transformation, training and restorative justice processes.
